General Summary

Ann Kurian, M.D., M.S., completed her medical education through the honors program at the University of Miami Miller School of Medicine, a dual degree program which allowed her to complete her bachelor's in science and medical doctorate in seven years. While attending the University of Miami, she was actively involved in community service through the Mitchell Wolfson Sr. Department of Community Service, and served as logistics coordinator at the national leadership conference. Dr. Kurian has also served as a clinical skills and United States Medical Licensing Examination review course instructor for junior medical students, and served on the University of Miami boards of American Medical Women's Association and Student National Medical Association. She continued to serve in leadership roles throughout her residency.
