My approach to patients is "Honesty is the best policy." I try and have open discussions with patients and their families about treatments based on evidence-based medicine. The experts of Texas Oncology are utilized in a team approach to deliver the best possible care for our patients. More importantly, we treat the whole person, not just the disease. We work closely together to customize treatments for each patient's specific condition. We also coordinate supportive services to help patients cope with their illness and related challenges. Our patients know that this powerful team is with them through their battle with cancer, to provide a caring and healing experience. All patients deserve this approach to cancer care, and they find it at Texas Oncology.
